Course Description

This course explores relationships between religion, nature and society as a means to understand how these relationships reflect and shape social relations among people. This course covers an important set of theories and methods in the study of religion and nature and approaches to studying the relationships between societies and nonhuman nature and will introduce students to those approaches by focusing in classic readings that underlie subsequent scholarship.

Case studies, focused on the global south, will familiarize students with theoretical approaches to the study of religion, nature and society, including indigenous/precolonial experiences of nature and religion; religion and nature in colonial encounters in Asia and Latin America; religion, post-colonialism and neo-colonialism; environmental justice; gender critiques and ecofeminism; and lived religion and sustainable communities.

This course will include a digital/public humanities component. We will explore how digital technologies can both help you present material to broad audiences and lead to new questions. In particular, we will focus on blogging and mapping tools, but will also address other tools, depending on class interest.

READINGS

Carol Adams and Lori Gruen, eds, Ecofeminism: feminist intersections with other animals and the earth

Mart Stewart, What Nature Suffers to Groe: Life, labor, and Landscape on the Georgia Coast, 1680-1920

COURSE OBJECTIVES

1. To analyze relationships between religion, nature and society as a means to understand how these relationships reflect and shape social relations among people;

2. To familiarize students with theoretical approaches to the study of religion, nature and society;
3. To read theoretical texts and materials critically; and
4. To improve students' ability to write analytically and comparatively about the broad themes and theories, as well as specific texts and cases, studied.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

1. Take home essay (25% of grade)

Students will select one work we have (or will read) and situate this work within its intellectual lineage. This project will help you determine the larger milieu into which this author and the work fits. Details will be discussed early in the semester.

2. Final research paper (30% of grade)

Students will write a research paper on a relevant topic of choice. More detailed information will be provided early in the semester. This research should incorporate a digital component. Over the semester, we will discuss how the digital and public humanities can help you both conduct and present your research. Your project should reflect a technique of your choice. Final projects will be presented in class.

3. Response Papers (15%)

Response papers are 1-2 page double-spaced response papers to the week's readings. These papers will be completed nearly every week of the semester. These papers will help you summarize, synthesize and communicate the main points of the works read.

Your summary should answer the following questions:

What is the author's main point and/or question?

How does the author argue this point? What evidence does he or she use?

Is the argument compelling? What does the author miss?

How does this material relate to other authors you have read?

4. Discussion/Class participation (15%)

This class will be conducted in a seminar format, and in-class discussions of the material are critical. You are responsible for attending class.

5. Blog Posts (10%)

Each student will write three blog posts during the semester, reflecting on issues that emerge in the class that intersect with your own research interests. Blogs are increasingly being used by academics and are one way of conveying ideas to the public. These blogs will be available to members of the class.

6. Final paper presentation (5%)

Each student will present their research to the class at the end of the semester.

POLICIES AND RULES

Late or Make-Up Assignments

You may take an exam early or receive an extension on an exam or essay assignment only in extraordinary circumstances and with prior approval from the instructor. If an extension is not granted, the assignment will be marked down ½ grade (e.g., from B+ to B) for each day late.

Honor Code

On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.” The university specifically prohibits cheating, plagiarism, misrepresentation, bribery, conspiracy, and fabrication. For more information about the definition of these terms and other aspects of the Honesty Guidelines, see <http://www.chem.ufl.edu/~itl/honor.html>. Any student(s) demonstrated to have cheated, plagiarized, or otherwise violated the Honor Code in any assignment for this course will fail the course. In addition, violations of the Academic Honesty Guidelines shall result in judicial action and the sanctions listed in paragraph XI of the Student Conduct Code.

Attendance and Participation

Class attendance is required. Poor attendance will harm your course grade. Students should arrive on time and prepared to discuss the day’s readings.

Common Courtesy

Cell phones and other electronic devices must be turned off during class. Students who receive or make calls during class will be asked to leave. You may take notes on a laptop computer, although the instructor reserves the right to ask you to turn off the computer if circumstances warrant. The instructor also reserves the right to ask any student engaging in disruptive behavior (e.g., whispering, reading a newspaper) to leave the class.

Conferences

Students are encouraged to meet with the instructor during office hours or by appointment.

Accommodation for Disabilities

Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student, who must then provide this documentation to the Instructor when requesting accommodation.

Well Being

Your well-being is important to the University of Florida. The U Matter, We Care initiative is committed to creating a culture of care on our campus by encouraging members of our community to look out for one another and to reach out for help if a member of our community is in need. If you or a friend is in distress, please contact umatter@ufl.edu so that the U Matter, We Care Team can reach out to the student in distress. A nighttime and weekend crisis counselor is available by phone at 352-392-1575. The U Matter, We Care Team can help connect students to the many other helping resources available including, but not limited to, Victim Advocates, Housing staff, and the Counseling and Wellness Center. Please remember that asking for help is a sign of strength. In case of emergency, call 9-1-1

Counseling Resources

Resources available on-campus for students include the following:

1. University Counseling Center, 301 Peabody Hall, 392-1575, personal and career counseling;
2. Student Mental Health, Student Health Care Center, 392-1171, personal counseling;
3. Sexual Assault Recovery Services (SARS), Student Health Care Center, 392-1161, sexual counseling;
4. Career Resource Center, Reitz Union, 392-1601, career development assistance and counseling.

Software Use

All faculty, staff, and students of the University are required and expected to obey the laws and legal agreements governing software use. Failure to do so can lead to monetary damages and/or criminal penalties for the individual violator. Because such violations are also against University policies and rules, disciplinary action will be taken as appropriate.
