REL3938-16818 SPECIAL TOPICS IN RELIGION (ISLAM, MEDIA & POPULAR CULTURE)

AFS 4935 16823 AFRICAN ST INTRDS SEM (ISLAM, MEDIA & POPULAR CULTURE)

Meeting & Location: Online Instructor: Musa Ibrahim Office: 472A Grinter Hall Telephone: (352) 392-7102 Email: musa.ibrahim@ufl.edu Office hours: Wednesday, 2 pm—4 pm & by appointement

Course Description

Islam, media, and popular culture explores media and popular culture as important windows on contemporary developments in the Muslim world. It focuses on new trends and developments that merge (new) media, popular arts, and Muslim practices. By approaching media and popular arts as sites where many important and controversial issues are explored, expressed, contested, resisted, and negotiated, the course will offer insight into the religious discourses, pious ethics, and cultural politics of states and social movements as manifested through global flows of media and popular culture in the Muslim world. During the semester, students will engage in in-depth discussions on a range of topics, including popular music, movies, television drama, visual culture, lifestyle, dress, and dance through case studies from Asia, Africa, Europe, North America, and the Middle East.

Course Objectives: By the end of this course students should:

- develop an understanding of new trends and developments that merge popular media and Islam
- understand different paths of inquiry into Islam, media, and popular culture
- become familiar with some of the heterogeneity of Muslim cultures and societies in the world
- acquire critical skills for analyzing popular culture in Muslim contexts and learn how to apply them
- learn how various uses of media have an impact on religious identities, experiences, and authority in Muslim societies
- gain experience in presenting oral and written arguments about popular culture in Muslim societies

Course materials: We will use the following books in this class

Van Nieuwkerk, K., LeVine, M., & Stokes, M. (Eds.). (2016). Islam and Popular Culture. University of Texas Press.

Daniels, T. (Ed.). (2013). Performance, popular culture, and piety in Muslim Southeast Asia. Springer.

Van Nieuwkerk, K. (2011). Muslim rap, halal soaps, and revolutionary theater: Artistic developments in the Muslim world. University of Texas Press.

Pennington, R., & Kahn, H. E. (Eds.). (2018). On Islam: Muslims and the Media. Indiana University Press.

In addition, several required articles and chapters are available to students on the course website at REL3938 and AFS4935

Requirements, Assignments, and Grading Criteria (N.B.: additional requirements for graduate students follow)

This class fulfills the Gordon Rule writing requirement (GR4) for undergraduates. You must complete at least 4,000 words of writing during the semester. Please ensure that each written assignment fulfills the minimum word requirement.

Format of Class, Requirements, and Grades:

The final grade for undergraduates will be determined by:

- Attendance (10%)
- Participation and presentations (15%)
- 3 Response papers (75%)

Attendance: attendance carries 10%. Students are expected to attend all classes. All students are allowed two unexcused absences. Each unexcused absence after the second will result in a one-point deduction (out of ten) from the overall attendance. Absences will be considered excused only if a written request is submitted and accepted in advance or if written explanations are submitted and accepted with valid documentation. If you miss class for any reason, it is your responsibility to find out from your classmates what you have missed.

Participation and Presentations: Because this course is structured primarily as a seminar, its success depends on active and informed participation in discussion. Students are asked to engage with the subject matter and contribute to discussions in class. This requires, among other things, doing the readings in advance, thinking critically about them, and being prepared to discuss them. Each student will make brief presentations (7 to 10 minutes) on selected topics/readings (from the supplementary readings or additional assigned readings) and help to facilitate discussion. Participation and presentation carry 15% distributed as follows; 1 informed individual presentation (5%), aggregate group presentations (10%). Each missed group presentation will result in a one-point deduction (out of five).

Response papers

In addition to class readings, we will be watching films, music, TV shows, and documentaries. Students will be required to write 3 Response Papers (1,500 words each, inclusive of notes and citations) on any 3 of the following themes that would be discussed in class:

First response paper due July 20 Tenants of Islam (5 pillars), Discourses on Islam and popular culture Media and representation of Islam and Muslims (stereotypes and corrections),

Second response paper due August 3

Trends and developments that merge popular media and Islam Islam and popular music/sound Islam and (halal) soaps

Third response paper due August 17 Islam, media, popular culture, and gender Islam and popular culture in America Islam and popular culture in Africa Muslims and Standup comedy

Paper Guidelines

Each response paper will address key issues and methodological and theoretical questions raised in the readings, videos, lectures, and class discussions. In each response paper, students should discuss how they viewed and understood the material. What stood out? What were the problems? How would they solve the problem? The objective of these papers is to encourage students to read the materials closely and articulate their own informed and analytically nuanced positions.

The format for papers is double spaced with font size 12. Papers should have a title and include the course name, date, page numbers, and a bibliography. All papers must be submitted via e-learning. Any unexcused late assignment will be lowered 1 point each day the assignment is late. Any assignment turned in over a week late will be lowered 10 points.

Grading scale

94% or higher	= A
90%-93%	= A
